FROM A SINGLE SEED, A MIGHTY TREE GROWS.

The Robert M. Kerr Food & Agricultural Products Center investigates, discovers, develops and delivers value-added food and agricultural processes and products in Oklahoma. FAPC innovation helps keep products, jobs and dollars home in Oklahoma. However, state funds to support this essential work are increasingly constrained.

Since 2003, the Product Innovation Fund (the Fund) has enabled FAPC to accomplish its objectives with the aid of increased financial support from private donors. Through a donation to the Oklahoma State University Foundation, you can contribute to the Fund and assist the FAPC in “Adding Value to Oklahoma.”

Your commitment to the Fund may plant the seed for a project that becomes a mighty tree to keep Oklahoma on the forefront of cutting-edge, value-added processing and technology. For more information, call Chuck Willoughby, FAPC business and marketing relations manager, at 405-744-6071.
